In order to cope with the difficult emotional feelings and the nagging physical symptoms, some may turn to the use of drugs or alcohol to help shut out the pain. Description "Tell me what to do, give me a sign, show me a way out of this," I screamed over and over again to an empty house. Since grief and depression are discomfoting, both to the grievors and those around them, some may try to deny or mask their feelings.

I have half written posts about safaris and China and train journeys and food. You will not forever continue to the daily, agonizing pain you feel in the first months and years. Parents may become distressed because it appears to them that the siblings have adjusted too quickly, grieved too little, or appeared totally unaffected by the death.

One of the most devastating comments said to me was actually a question. Back to top. We're featuring millions of their reader ratings on our book pages to help you find your new favourite book.
